Learning focus

The Lok Sabha is the House of the People and is directly elected; the Rajya Sabha is the Council of States and is a continuing chamber.

1. Ordinary bills generally require passage by both Houses. The Constitution provides a joint sitting in specified deadlock situations, with important exceptions.

2. Money Bills follow a special procedure: the Lok Sabha has decisive authority and the Rajya Sabha can make recommendations within the constitutionally specified period.

3. The Council of Ministers is collectively responsible to the Lok Sabha, which makes that House central to government formation and confidence.

4. The Rajya Sabha provides a revising chamber and a forum for state representation, while the Lok Sabha has a stronger role in financial control and executive accountability.
